About the Program

The Transit Manager Certificate Program (TMCP), sponsored by the Florida Department of Transportation and offered through the University of South Florida’s (USF) University College, prepares Florida’s public transportation managers for the unique challenges they encounter. Participants in this professional development certificate program experience skill and leadership building sessions while being provided with the opportunity to expand their network of transit colleagues.

The program offers specific tracks for operation, maintenance and administrative personnel, and is focused on current, real world issues. Training is delivered through a combination of online courses; self-paced computer based training, traditional classroom delivery, and collaborative group projects.

Participation in these contemporary seminars and projects allow students to be fully engaged in their education development and apply their skills in reality based environments. Through this program, participants will become more knowledgeable leaders, improve their professional credentials, and gain a thorough understanding of the functional areas associated with transit management.

eLearning Course Delivery

• Self-paced, online training courses
• Computer based training platform
• Multimedia instructional methods that include video, photography, narration, and text slides designed to improve retention by addressing multiple learning styles
• Dedicated Listserv that encourages student interaction with colleagues and Faculty
• Mid-Course Webinars facilitated by Faculty Advisors to review course materials and clarify concepts

www.floridatmcp.org

Edward Bart, ebart@cutr.usf.edu, (813) 974-6693
Amber Reep, reep@cutr.usf.edu, (813) 974-9823